

ADVANCE DIRECTIVES

ADVANCE MEDICAL DIRECTIVES

The "Montana Rights of the Terminally Ill Act" (also known as the Montana Living Will Act") allows individuals the maximum possible control over their own medical care and inevitable death. The law allows you to declare your intent not to have life sustaining treatment which only prolongs the process of dying. This Declaration of Living Will only becomes effective if your attending physician determines you have an incurable or irreversible condition that will result in death in a relatively short time.

The law provides immunity for physicians and facilities which carry out the provisions of the living will. It also provides a procedure which requires the physician who will not honor your living will to so notify you, and transfer you to another physician who will comply with your wishes. You have the ability to revoke this Declaration of Living Will at anytime and in any manner. There are also provisions allowing you the option of designating another to make the decisions regarding withholding or withdrawal of life sustaining treatment.

If you do not write a living will, or you do not designate another to make these decisions, the law provides a list of individuals who will be allowed to make the decision for you, in the following order:

- 1) spouse;
- 2) adult child or majority of your adult children;
- 3) parents;
- 4) adult sibling or majority of your adult siblings;
- 5) nearest other adult relative.

Living wills have no affect on life insurance or on annuities.

Before considering a "living will" there are three important points to bear in mind.

1. First, a "living will" is only used when you can no longer participate in the decision making process surrounding your treatment and you have been diagnosed with a terminal condition which will result in death in a short period of time. As long as you remain competent you may refuse or accept treatment, regardless of the existence of a living will.

2. Second, the living will is a personal statement which should reflect your end of life treatment desires. It should be developed by you, with consultation with your attorney if you wish to use one. You may wish to discuss this topic with loved ones and your personal doctor or health nurse. Any generic or standardized form of a living will should be examined to ensure that it reflects your wishes.

3. Third, the validity and composition of living wills may vary from state to state. If you anticipate spending a substantial amount of time in another state, you should research that state's law.

If you have decided to exercise your right to a living will, please consider the following steps:

A. Do the research. Materials and other samples may be obtained from a variety of sources (for example: Montana Senior Citizens' Association; American Lung Association of Montana; or Montana Code Annotated). Be positive that your ideas concerning the nature of incompetency which triggers the use of the will, the severity of the medical condition necessary to withhold treatment, and the types of treatment to be withheld are expressed in the document.

B. Consider carefully who will serve as witnesses. Although Montana law has little to say concerning witnesses, other states have set out more specific requirements. As a general rule, your attending physician or other medical personnel who may be attending to you in time of illness should not act as witnesses. In some states relatives may not act as witnesses.

C. The living will should be easily accessible to those likely to be involved in a time of emergency. Copies of the executed document should be in your medical records, and family members and your personal physician should also have a copy. You may also want to carry a card in your wallet or purse stating the existence of your living will and how it may be located.

D. A living will should be re-executed, or rewritten, at relatively frequent intervals. This will add to the perception that the document truly reflects your wishes.

E. Remember, you have the ability to revoke the living will at anytime and in any manner.

F. Montana law does not specify whether food and water are considered “life sustaining treatment. Therefore your living will should be specific as to whether you wish food and water to be provided or not.

Like a testamentary will, the living will allows you to maintain your right to self-determination. It is a document of great significance which requires research and reflection before drafting. Contact your local Area Agency on Aging for additional information if you feel it is necessary.

Use the form on the following page if you want to appoint someone else (who is of sound mind and 18 years of age or older) to make the decisions for you about withholding or withdrawing life-sustaining treatment. If your appointee is unavailable or unwilling to serve as your designee, your doctor will make the determination. If you use the form, check with the people you want to be designees to make sure they are willing to so serve.

(4) If the designation of an attorney-in-fact pursuant to 72-5-501 and 72-5-502 or the judicial appointment of an individual contains written authorization to make decisions regarding the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment, that designation or appointment constitutes, for the purposes of this part, a declaration designating another individual to act for the declarant pursuant to subsection (1).

(5) A health care provider who is furnished a copy of the declaration shall make it a part of the declarant's medical record and, if unwilling to comply with the declaration, shall advise the declarant and any individual designated to act for the declarant promptly.

50-9-104. Revocation of declaration.

(1) A declarant may revoke a declaration at any time and in any manner, without regard to mental or physical condition. A revocation is effective upon its communication to the attending physician, attending advanced practice registered nurse, or other health care provider by the declarant or a witness to the revocation. A health care provider or emergency medical services personnel witnessing a revocation shall act upon the revocation and shall communicate the revocation to the attending physician or the attending advanced practice registered nurse at the earliest opportunity. A revocation communicated to a person other than the attending physician, attending advanced practice registered nurse, emergency medical services personnel, or a health care provider is not effective unless the attending physician or the attending advanced practice registered nurse is informed of it before the qualified patient is in need of life-sustaining treatment.

(2) The attending physician, attending advanced practice registered nurse, or other health care provider shall make the revocation a part of the declarant's medical record.

50-9-105. When declaration operative.

(1) A declaration becomes operative when:

(a) it is communicated to the attending physician or the attending advanced practice registered nurse; and

(b) the declarant is determined by the attending physician or the attending advanced practice registered nurse to be in a terminal condition and no longer able to make decisions regarding administration of life-sustaining treatment.

(2) Except as provided in 72-17-216, when the declaration becomes operative, the attending physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse and other health care providers shall act in accordance with its provisions and with the instructions of a designee under 50-9-103\(1\) or comply with the transfer requirements of 50-9-203.

50-9-106. Consent by others to withholding or withdrawal of treatment.

(1) If a written consent to the withholding or withdrawal of the treatment, witnessed by two individuals, is given to the attending physician or the attending advanced practice registered nurse, the physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse may withhold or withdraw life-sustaining treatment from an individual who:

(a) has been determined by the attending physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse to be in a terminal condition and no longer able to make decisions regarding the administration of life-sustaining treatment; and

(b) has no effective declaration.

(2) The authority to consent or to withhold consent under subsection (1) may be exercised by the following individuals, in order of priority:

(a) the spouse of the individual;

(b) an adult child of the individual or, if there is more than one adult child, a majority of the adult children who are reasonably available for consultation;

(c) the parents of the individual;

(d) an adult sibling of the individual or, if there is more than one adult sibling, a majority of the adult siblings who are reasonably available for consultation; or

(e) the nearest other adult relative of the individual by blood or adoption who is reasonably available for consultation.

(3) A full guardian may consent or withhold consent under subsection (1) as provided in 72-5-321.

(4) If a class entitled to decide whether to consent is not reasonably available for consultation and competent to decide or if it declines to decide, the next class is authorized to decide. However, an equal division in a class does not authorize the next class to decide.

(5) A decision to grant or withhold consent must be made in good faith. A consent is not valid if it conflicts with the expressed intention of the individual.

(6) A decision of the attending physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse acting in good faith that a consent is valid or invalid is conclusive.

(7) Life-sustaining treatment cannot be withheld or withdrawn pursuant to this section from an individual known to the attending physician or the attending advanced practice registered nurse to be pregnant so long as it is probable that the fetus will develop to the point of live birth with continued application of life-sustaining treatment.

50-9-107. When health care provider may presume validity of declaration. In the absence of knowledge to the contrary, a health care provider may assume that a declaration complies with this chapter and is valid.

50-9-108. Effect of previous declaration. An instrument executed before October 1, 1991, that substantially complies with 50-9-103(1) is effective under this chapter.

50-9-109. Reserved.

50-9-110. Authority to adopt rules. The department may adopt rules to implement this chapter.

50-9-111. Recognition of declarations executed in other states. A declaration executed in a manner substantially similar to 50-9-103 in another state and in compliance with the law of that state is effective for purposes of this chapter.

PART 2

Effect on Health Care -- Rights and Duties

50-9-201. Recording determination of terminal condition and content of declaration. Upon determining that a declarant is in a terminal condition, the attending physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse who knows of a declaration shall record that determination and the terms of the declaration in the declarant's medical record.

50-9-202. Treatment of qualified patients.

(1) A qualified patient may make decisions regarding life-sustaining treatment so long as the patient is able to do so.

(2) This chapter does not affect the responsibility of the attending physician, attending advanced practice registered nurse or other health care provider to provide treatment, including nutrition and hydration, for a patient's comfort care or alleviation of pain.

(3) Life-sustaining treatment cannot be withheld or withdrawn pursuant to a declaration from an individual known to the attending physician or attending advanced practice registered nurse to be pregnant so long as it is probable that the fetus will develop to the point of live birth with continued application of life-sustaining treatment.

50-9-203 Transfer of patients. An attending physician, attending advanced practice registered nurse, or other health care provider who is unwilling to comply with this chapter shall take all reasonable steps as promptly as practicable to transfer care of the declarant to another physician, advanced practice registered nurse, or health care provider who is willing to do so. If the policies of a health care facility preclude compliance with the declaration of a qualified patient under this chapter, that facility shall take all reasonable steps to transfer the patient to a facility in which the provisions of this chapter can be carried out.

50-9-204. Immunities.

(1) In the absence of actual notice of the revocation of a declaration, the following, while acting in accordance with the requirements of this chapter, are not subject to civil or criminal liability or guilty of unprofessional conduct:

(a) a physician or advanced practice registered nurse who causes the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment from a qualified patient;

(b) a person who participates in the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment under the direction or with the authorization of a physician or advanced practice registered nurse;

(c) emergency medical services personnel who cause or participate in the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment under the direction of or with the authorization of a physician or advanced practice registered nurse or who on receipt of reliable documentation follow a living will protocol;

(d) emergency medical services personnel who proceed to provide life-sustaining treatment to a qualified patient pursuant to a revocation communicated to them; and

(e) a health care facility in which withholding or withdrawal occurs.

(2) A health care provider whose action under this chapter is in accord with reasonable medical standards is not subject to civil or criminal liability or discipline for unprofessional conduct with respect to that decision.

(3) A health care provider whose decision about the validity of consent under 50-9-106 is made in good faith is not subject to criminal or civil liability or discipline for unprofessional conduct with respect to that decision.

(4) An individual designated pursuant to 50-9-103(1) or an individual authorized to consent pursuant to 50-9-106, whose decision is made or consent is given in good faith pursuant to this chapter, is not subject to criminal or civil liability or discipline for unprofessional conduct with respect to that decision.

50-9-205. Effect on insurance -- patient's decision.

(1) Death resulting from the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment in accordance with this chapter does not constitute, for any purpose, a suicide or homicide.

(2) The making of a declaration pursuant to 50-9-103 does not affect the sale, procurement, or issuance of any policy of life insurance or annuity, nor does it affect, impair, or modify the terms of an existing policy of life insurance. A policy of life insurance is not legally impaired or invalidated by the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment from an insured, notwithstanding any term of the policy to the contrary.

(3) A person may not prohibit or require the execution of a declaration as a condition for being insured for or receiving health care services.

(4) This chapter does not create a presumption concerning the intention of an individual who has revoked or has not executed a declaration with respect to the use, withholding, or withdrawal of life-sustaining treatment in the event of a terminal condition.

(5) This chapter does not affect the right of a patient to make decisions regarding use of life-sustaining treatment, so long as the patient is able to do so, or impair or supersede a right or responsibility that any person has to affect the withholding or withdrawal of medical care.

(6) This chapter does not require a health care provider to take action contrary to reasonable medical standards.

(7) This chapter does not condone, authorize, or approve mercy killing or euthanasia.
