Cottage Foods are non-potentially hazardous foods that are made in a home kitchen. Selling cottage foods, or foods made in a home kitchen, became legal in October of 2015. Since legalization, 91 Montanans have registered as operators in 27 counties. Each recipe is reviewed by the local health department to ensure it is a non-potentially hazardous product, a food posing a low-risk of causing sickness, but no inspections occur.

91 Montanans have registered

1281 Unique Products

The type of product registered is reflected in the "Word Cloud" above, larger words represent more common products.

Cottage Food
- Made in a home kitchen
- Non-Potentially Hazardous
- Direct Sales to Consumer