The Tribal BEAR Project operates in Montana and Idaho through the Salish Kootenai College (SKC) of the Flathead. The primary purpose of the BEAR Project is to build the capacity of tribal health clinics, IHS and/or regional care facilities to respond to Native persons living with HIV and AIDS, in their communities. The Tribal BEAR program brings together physicians, nurses, traditional healers, pharmacists, case managers, mental health and chemical dependency counselors, dentists and nutritionists to participate in trainings and preceptorships on HIV care and treatment, so that local providers can offer comprehensive health care to American Indians living with HIV/AIDS.
- The Tribal BEAR Project also works to link key resources, both on and off the reservation. By building bridges between tribal and non-tribal agencies, American Indians living with HIV/AIDS will have the freedom to make choices that best meet their individual health care needs.

Gay Men's Health Crisis is the world's first and leading provider of HIV/AIDS prevention, care and advocacy. Building on decades of dedication and expertise, we understand the reality of HIV/AIDS and empower a healthy life for all. Today, GMHC continues to pioneer HIV prevention, care and advocacy. Our Mission: GMHC fights to end the AIDS epidemic and uplift the lives of all affected.

www.mtgayhealth.org

The Gay Men's Task Force (GMTF) is made up of gay men from across the state of Montana. We meet three times a year in person and several times a year via conference calls or at GMTF events. The Task Force organizes retreats for men who are gay, bisexual, or have sex with men. In addition, specific retreats for HIV+ men, young gay men, and Native American gay, bisexual, transgender identified, and/or two spirited also occur each year. We make recommendations about gay men's health issues to the Governor's AIDS Council, and the Montana Community Planning Group (CPG). Task force members also conduct peer outreach, advocate for gay men's health and work with local health agencies and community-based organizations to help fulfill our mission.

The National Working Positive Coalition (NWPC) grew out of the Working Positive Summit Conference in Philadelphia in April 2003. The Conference goal was to share information about evidence-based and experience-based best practices in employment services for people living with HIV/AIDS. The conference participants, including many of the country's service providers, researchers and educators in the field of HIV and employment, decided to continue working together as a national organization which became the National Working Positive Coalition (NWPC). Promotes research, development and implementation of effective practices in employment services.

www.projectinform.org

Project Inform is respected for 28 years of leadership to speed dozens of safe and effective HIV medications to people who most need them, educate hundreds of thousands of people with HIV and their providers about HIV care, and make sure the sickest and poorest people with HIV can have quality, affordable health care services. Today, we are also fighting to end the hepatitis C epidemic, which affects more than 3.5 million people in the US, including 300,000 of the nation's 1.2 million HIV-positive people. But the sad fact is that, even now, the majority of Americans living with HIV or hepatitis C are not receiving medical care and treatment early in infection when they do the most good. That is wrong — and unnecessary. Project Inform is a small organization with big impact. We are making good on our impatience at the pace of progress against both HIV and hepatitis C by advocating for innovative, strategic policies and programs that encourage and support much greater numbers of people with HIV and hepatitis C to be in medical care and treatment. We are respected for our knowledge, integrity, and for being unafraid to press elected officials, government, industry and other HIV and hepatitis C organizations to adopt approaches that will speed HIV and hepatitis C to an end.

www.hivlawandpolicy.org

The Center for HIV Law and Policy is a national legal and policy resource and strategy center for people with HIV and their advocates. CHLP works to reduce the impact of HIV on vulnerable and marginalized communities and to secure the human rights of people affected by HIV. We support and increase the advocacy power and HIV expertise of attorneys, community members, and service providers, and advance policy initiatives that are grounded in and uphold social justice, science, and the public health. We do this by providing high-quality legal and policy materials through an accessible web-based resource bank; cultivating interdisciplinary support networks of experts, activists, and professionals; and coordinating a strategic leadership hub to track and advance advocacy on critical HIV legal, health, and human rights issues.

CHLP offers a collaborative approach to the persistent problem of HIV discrimination, and the shortage of trained advocates to address the problem: a national center dedicated to coordinating and expanding the power of HIV advocates.

Strategic coordination and sharing of resources is a sound approach to maximizing the representation of those with HIV, allowing existing organizations to use limited resources as efficiently as possible. The Center for HIV Law and Policy works with experts and community members from local direct service providers to national organizations to identify, create, and share high-quality legal and policy resources and advocacy strategies.

www.preventionjustice.org

The HIV Prevention Justice Alliance (HIV PJA) is a 13,000-person national network in the United States, based at the AIDS Foundation of Chicago. The HIV Prevention Justice movement understands that the ability of any person to determine his, her or their HIV-related destiny is tied to the conditions in their community. These conditions are not determined only by individual choices or access. We expose and confront the persistence of inequality that comes from economic, political and social conditions that benefit the few to the injury of many.

www.peoplesharmreductionalliance.org

At the People's Harm Reduction Alliance (PHRA) we work under the philosophy of harm reduction to fight the spread of infectious disease and educate the community about safer drug use. We offer safe disposal of used needles, access to new needles and clean supplies, referrals to other pertinent services such as detox and treatment options, and now free Hepatitis C testing and vein care, all in a non-judgmental environment. We are peer-run, meaning we have active users in all levels of our organization. We are proud to remain non-profit and community-based, but that means we need your donations to keep our doors open if you want to contribute to the local fight against HIV/AIDS and other diseases.

www.harmreduction.org

Harm reduction is a set of practical strategies and ideas aimed at reducing negative consequences associated with drug use. Harm Reduction is also a movement for social justice built on a belief in, and respect for, the rights of people who use drugs. Harm reduction incorporates a spectrum of strategies from safer use, to managed use to abstinence to meet drug users “where they’re at,” addressing conditions of use along with the use itself. Because harm reduction demands that interventions and policies designed to serve drug users reflect specific individual and community needs, there is no universal definition of or formula for implementing harm reduction.

At Smart + Strong, we know that when you are armed with expert, unbiased health care information; when you are empowered and inspired to advocate for your needs; and when you can connect to others dealing with a similar health condition, you are more likely to survive-and thrive. Smart + Strong's health-focused magazines and websites bring together large, diverse populations to share lifesaving information with them and to serve as platforms for you to tell health care providers, insurance companies, the media, our government and especially each other what it's like to live with—and overcome—a given health challenge. Our vast web of online social networking offers solace for those of you who might otherwise suffer in isolation. It links you to the support, resources and care that can save your life as well as reduce the cost of health care to you, your employer, your health insurance company and our nation. Our online social network includes: online forums that are active 24/7; private, secure, one-on-one mentoring; highly active blogs; and online personals for people interested in dating similarly health-conscious people.
