Diabetes? You can THRIVE

You have Diabetes!

When it comes to managing your diabetes, you are faced with hundreds of difficult decisions daily that impact your blood glucose levels. Although this can be very challenging, you have an opportunity to THRIVE with your diabetes by working with your healthcare provider, a Diabetes Care and Education Specialist (DCES), and participating in a Diabetes Self-Management Education and Support (DSMES) Program.

What is DSMES?

DSMES services are a covered benefit through most health plans, including Montana Medicaid, that provides an evidence-based foundation to gain the knowledge, skills, tools, and support to manage diabetes throughout an individual’s lifetime. This foundation helps persons with diabetes to navigate daily self-care with confidence.

How is DSMES Offered?

DSMES is offered by a Diabetes Care and Education Specialist (DCES) (formerly called ‘diabetes educator’), who is an experienced healthcare professional such as a registered nurse, registered dietitian, or pharmacist, who has expertise in diabetes care and education. The Diabetes Care and Education Specialist collaboratively works with the health care team to design a management plan that is tailored to your lifestyle, culture, and beliefs. This plan can help with coping skills for the emotions and demands of living with a chronic condition. DCES are experts in diabetes technology can help identify what devices and apps may be the best suited to meet needs and financial situations. An important part of the healthcare team, Diabetes Care and Education Specialists are positioned to help:

- Mange blood glucose
- Lower A1c levels
- Develop coping skills to address the daily challenges of living with diabetes
- Reduce the risk for complications
- Decrease costs by reducing or eliminating the need for medications and emergency room visits
- Help find access to cost-savings programs

4 Key Times to see a Diabetes Care and Education Specialist

There is never a bad time to schedule an appointment with a diabetes care and education specialist, but there are a few key times when it is important to schedule a visit.

1. At diagnosis
2. Annually or when you are having challenges in meeting diabetes treatment goals
3. When your diabetes or your health changes and impacts diabetes self-management (such as medication changes, or when other issues arise)
4. During times of life transitions – changes in health care provider, insurance, living situation, etc.

You have been Referred. What’s Next?

If you have received a referral from your provider, take the next important step to successfully managing your diabetes and make the call!!

What happens during Diabetes Education?

During the initial visit, a diabetes care and education specialist will spend time developing a plan that helps overcome the barriers faced in managing diabetes, develop problem-solving and coping skills and adopt healthy behaviors. Here are a few ways a diabetes care and education specialist can help.

- Promotes understanding of exactly what diabetes is and how it affects the body.
- Explains how diabetes medications work.
- Figures out what types of foods are best for the individual and shares how to plan meals that fit lifestyle, culture, religious beliefs, and budget.
- Determines the best type of glucose monitoring device for your specific circumstances.
- Discovers apps and other tools to provide reminders and help track progress.
- Assists with stress management and helps solve problems as they arise.
- Analyzes data from diabetes devices to provide treatment recommendations.

Diabetes changes over time. To meet new challenges brought on by advancing diabetes or other health issues or life changes, new skills must be learned. DSMES is not a ‘one-time thing,’ but is meant to be an ongoing service that helps the individual adjust to the personal diabetes self-management plan.
